THE WAR IN ASIA MINOR. Although the operations on the Danube are conducted on a grander scale, and, from the political importance to Europe of the issues involved: and the comparatively familiar knowledge most renders possess of the theatre of war, have a superior claim on public attention, yet the campaign in Armonia is likely, we think, to be quite as interesting to students of the art of war, while its nossible results in securing to Russia that predominance in Western Asia which she has soone vainly coveted invest it for Angle-Indians with an irresistible fascination. "The principles of the art of war have," says Kinglake, "a great stability; and, although there is an infinite variety in the methods of applying them, it results that the invasion of one nation by another is repeatedly undertaken upon the same accustomed which is heavy after rain. route." This observation, which the historian of the Crimean War makes with reference to the Russian invasion of the Principalities and passage of the Danube in 1853, applies with still greater force to the invasion of a country like Armenia.

Pietri Boni, an Italian brigand chief, has come to an untimely end in Algeria. Information having been received that he was hiding at Bone. a party of gendarmes proceeded to arrest him. about for two days. The gendarmes gave him chase. Finding himself driven to bay, he immed into a pool of water, and, drawing a sword from a sword-stick, defied his pursuers. One of the gendarmes fired a revolver at his head, and the bullet struck him in the temple. He fell on his face, and died immediately. A considerable sum of money in notes of the Bank of Italy was found on his body. The Emperor of Russia has, it is stated, finally sanctioned the construction of the Orenburg-Tashkent Railway line. This line (the Berlin correspondent of The Times says) will proceed from Orenburg to Orsk. Djitikul, and the Lake of Kuyouk, where it divides into a northern and southern branch, the northern branch joining the Siberian railway system at Troitsk and Ekaterinburg, and the southern going on to Tashkent. Kogalshar, and Djulek. The line, avoiding the desert and steppe, is circuitous: 1.800 versts of rail will be required between Orenburg and Tashkent, not including the branch line at Freitsk, which is 300 versts long. A Highlander from the Small Isles who had never been in a church or heard a sermon in his life came over to a sacrament on the mainland and the service being in his native tongue, he paid great attention until the psalm was given out, for he had missed the first one. When the precentor fell a-bawling out, Donald could not comprehend that, and called to some one to stop him; but how he was astounded when the whole congregation fell a-gaping and bawling with all primary cause, bustled up to him, and gave him a blow on the side of the head till the book dropped from his hand. "What do you mean, sir ?" -said the precentor. "Humph! be you taking tat, said Donald, "for you was to pekinner of the close of the 17th century the reigning Emperor of China appointed an Imperial Commission to reprint in one vast collection all native works of interest and importance in every branch of literature. In the beginning of the following century the Commissioners completed their labours, and were able to lay before the Emperor very palpable proof of their diligence in the shape of a compilation consisting of 6,109 volumes entitled "Kinting koo kin too shoo tseih ching," or "An Illustrated Imperial Collection of Ancient and Modern Literature." Only a small edition was printed off in the first instance, and before long the greater part of the copper types which had been east for the undertaking were purloined by untrustworthy officials, and the remainder were melted down and coined into cash. Accidents by fire and by violence have considerably reduced the number of copies of the Herr Ferdinand von Hochstetter, the President imperial edition originially printed, and it is of the Vienna Geographical Society, gives in believed that only a comparatively few now remain.

These figures, says a Government resolution, deserve the careful consideration of local governments and administrations in view to such measures being adopted in each province as seem best calculated to diminish with the greatest efficiency and at the smallest expense the less of the life and property which these statistics record.

"PARSON BROWNLOW."

W. G. Brownlow died on the 28th of April, at Knoxville, Tennassee, in the 72nd year of his age. He was originally an itinerant Methodist minister in the Southern States. Nearly half a century age he wrote, in a controversy with a clergyman on the slavery question :- "While I shall advocate the owning of men, women, and children, as you say our, 'discipline' styles slaves, I shall, if I am living when the battle comes, stand by my Government and the Union formed by our fethers, as Mr. Wesley stood by the Brittish Gévernment, of which he was a loyal subject." In 1873 Mr. Brownlow became editor of the Knoxville Whig, and by his trenchant style | to 5 inches. of discussion and his hold and defiant personal attacks acquired the title of "the fighting parson." In the civil war he advocated so strongly the cause of the Union, that he was arrested for treason to the Confederacy, and sent over the -Union-lines in 1862, but on the capture of Knox. From ville by the Federal forces in 1863 he returned, sorted. and resumed the publication of his paper. "commoncing again with the rebellon where the Godforsaken meb, called the Confederate authorities, had forced him to leave off." After the close of the war he supported the Congressional plan of reconstruction, was elected Governor of Tennessee, and finally a Senator of the United States. He gave the following account of himself in 1862:—"I have been a labouring man all my life long, and have acted upon the Scriptural maxim of eating my bread in the sweat of my brow. Though a Southern man in feeling and principle, I do not think it degrading to a man to labour, as do most Southern disunionists. recognize the dignity of labour. Educated labour will be the salvation of this vast country. I have never been arraigned in the church for immorality. I never played a card. I never was a profane swearer: I never drank a dram of liquor until within a few years, when it was taken as a medicine. I never had a cigar or a chew of tobacco in my month. I never was in attendance at a theatre. I never attended horse-race. I never courted but one woman; and her I married. I am about 6 feet high, and I have weighed as high as 175lb.—have had as fine a constitution as any man need desire.' "Wrong-headed though he sometimes was," says the New York Times. " his heartiness and pluck and flinty honesty gave him an inprognable place in the esteem of the American people."

It is believed that it fears, as the convention would give the right to the contracting Governments to abolish all duties on the manufacture of sugar in their respective countries, that the Dutch manufacturers will use pressure to have these duties abolished in Holland. This would cause a loss of 10,000,000 floring annually to the Dutch treasury. PRONUNCIATION. An Angle-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new Prospectuses may be obtained at the Office of this words which the Chinese have to late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best Matthew Clark & Sons, 72, Great Tower Street, London. principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the PERFUMERY. Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy o space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins. and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. For practical purposes the arrangement o the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives! themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted.

To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration:— Chalmers' Vecabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medharst's English AKEY and SONE EMERY and BLACK. and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English WESTMINSTER BRIDGE ROAD, LONDON, ENGLAND.
